Learning through Music

Explore the power of music to motivate learning and revitalise your classroom.

COURSE OUTLINE

Learning through Music is designed to show how teachers can incorporate music into their classroom practice as a way to stimulate learning, improve cognitive performance and build connections. As a teaching tool, music has the potential to aid language development, strengthen memorisation and enrich the classroom dynamic.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

Overall objectives of the mobility. Analyse the benefits of using music as a teaching tool. Discover the connections between music and cognitive performance, mood management and social cohesion. Learn about the power of group song and sound to create bonds and enhance learning. Evaluate materials/resources that can be used to develop music-based activities and projects. Workshop ideas for creative lesson plans.

Added value of the mobility. This course allows participants to learn new skills while sharing teaching ideas with fellow participants from primary education.

Activities to be carried out. Completion of tasks to stimulate analysis of music-based teaching methods. Workshop sessions in which participants reflect on how they can integrate music-related activities into their teaching and share ideas with fellow participants. Opportunities to enhance English language skills through content-based lessons. Participants are directed towards online resources to help incorporate music into classroom practice. Cultural and heritage trips as part of a chaperoned group.

Expected outcomes and impact. This course offers a professional development opportunity which aims to inspire teachers to innovate their classroom practice through the introduction of music.
